SOCIAL SCIENCES BACHELOR OF ARTS - HISTORY TRACK

Social Sciences - History Track (Closed to new enrollment July 1, 2023)

A Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences with a history track provides a global perspective on the social, political, and intellectual development of civilizations. It allows students an opportunity to reflect on the past, gain a historical perspective on the present, and acquire a knowledge and understanding of human behavior. A history track may choose courses that deal with Africa, Asia, Europe, North America, and South America.

The History program offers a curriculum that is designed to prepare graduates to function in and contribute to an expanding society, enhance critical thinking skills, develop an appreciation and understanding of historical research methodologies, become aware of the contributions of diverse cultures to our global society, internalize and integrate this information into their total knowledge base, and prepare students for advanced professional studies and varied career opportunities.

In lieu of HIS 103 Western Civilization, majors are required to take HIS 101 World Civilization I and HIS 102 World Civilization II. Additionally, the student must complete a minor.
